

Physician Opportunity

Finger Lakes Region of New York

F.F. Thompson Hospital, a vibrant community hospital located in the western region of New York's Finger Lakes, is looking for a seasoned emergency department physician with strong leadership skills to guide a growing ED as its medical director - including both administrative and clinical duties. Thompson's ED currently has over 28,000 pediatric and adult patient visits annually. The ED and its staff routinely deal with the spectrum of emergencies, including trauma cases.

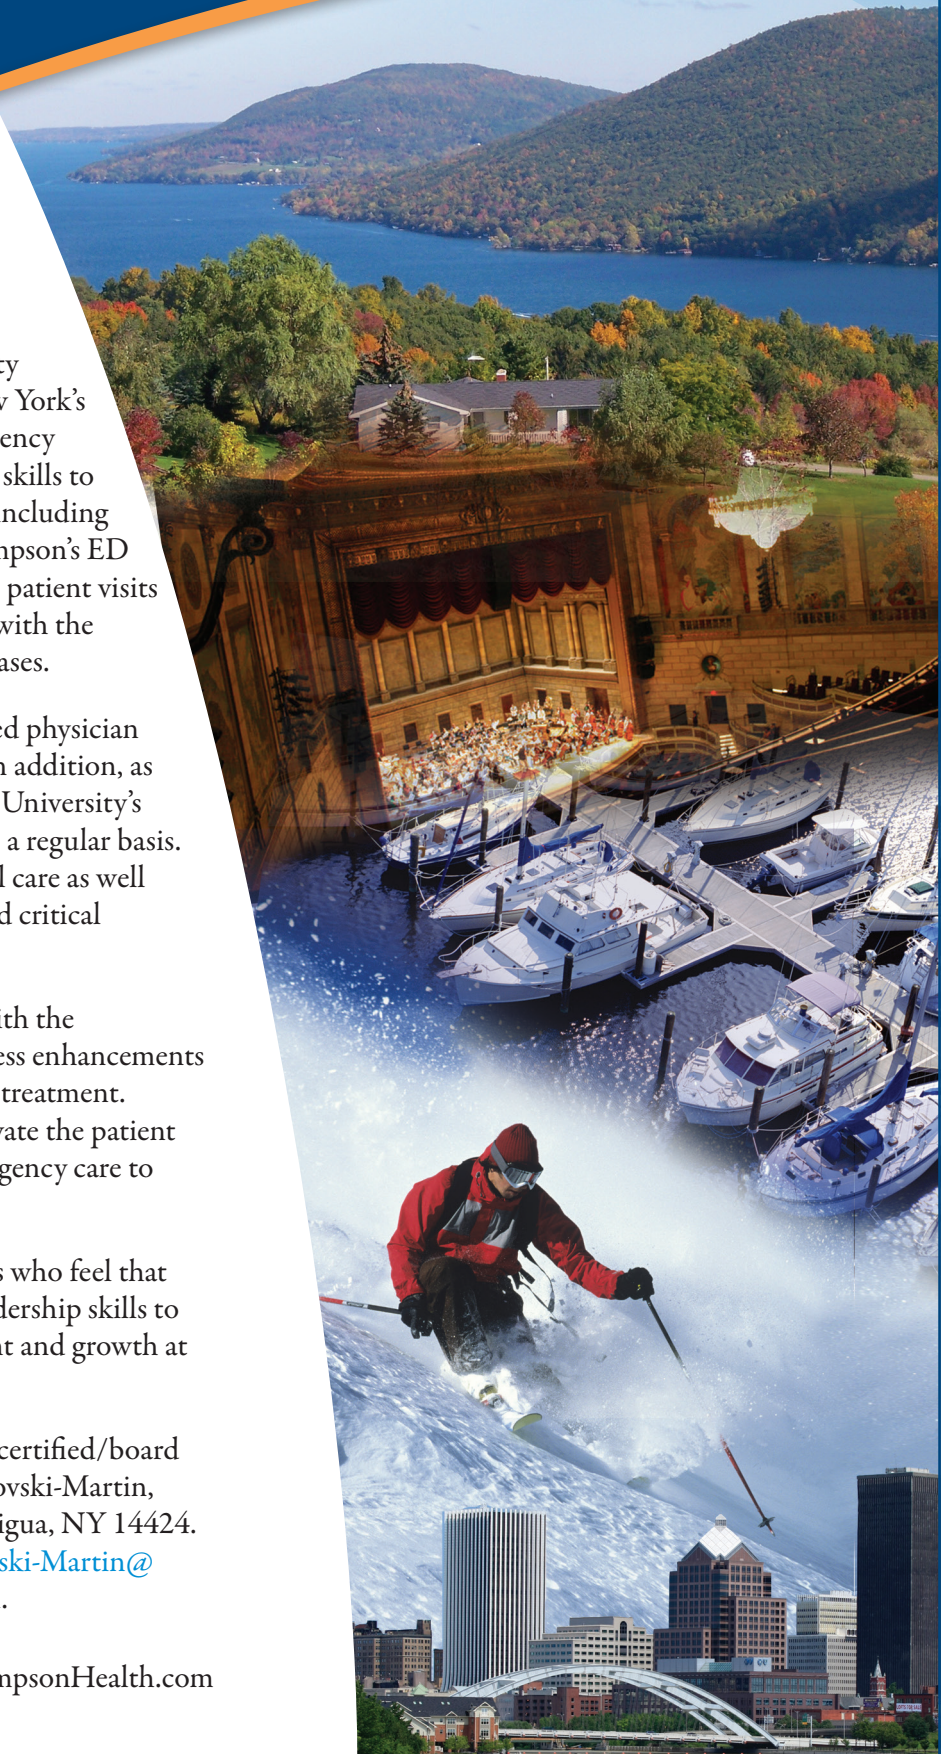

Our ED is presently staffed by ten experienced physician providers as well as mid-level practitioners. In addition, as part of our affiliation, ED residents from the University's residency program rotate through the ED on a regular basis. The hospital provides a wide range of surgical care as well as subspecialty care in pulmonary, cardiac and critical care medicine.

The ED medical director will work closely with the department's nurse manager to develop process enhancements to provide efficient, timely and cost-effective treatment. Our physicians are strongly motivated to elevate the patient experience and to provide leading-edge emergency care to our community.

We welcome inquiries from those individuals who feel that they have the administrative abilities and leadership skills to be a part of an exciting period of development and growth at Thompson Health.
